Non-stop Midnight Oil to open the show with all of My Country and maybe a little more and that's exciting because this week of course the for me anyway, the Midnight Oil documentary the hardest line hit your screens and the very big ones and I'm going off to see it on Tuesday night sneak preview. And is Daffy Duck once said the sneaks aren't going to like it boom boom, and I'm looking forward to that and also going to be talking about bits of my country. Well, I'm not mine. It's sort of everyone's our community all that sort of thing. No, not a nice not-for-profitation, the LGBTQIA+ community and more and yesterday I braved the elephant's all the elements and got out there and rugged up and went to the wonderful event that we had Kayleen and Allison on the program for last week.

Stonewall from Rebellion to assimilation and some great a great range of viewpoints by all speakers. It really was instead of quite you know emotional at times and thought-provoking which is what a good panel discussion needs to be. You know, there's a saying I learned many years ago about being gently challenge, which I think is a good way to try to communicate with people and you know, just move people's opinions on now, sometimes you've got to be a little more assertive but it is also about one step at a time and I think this did this so well yesterday a great

Range of speakers declaring my bias The Fabulous Kayleen white founder of transgender Victoria, which talks about sort of talked about 10 you create change from there's an old saying which I had many years ago over 20 years ago. Do you create change from inside or outside the system or structure? And of course on this show, the answer is non-binary and it's going to depend on circumstances. It's going to depend on the person involved yet lipid it dip and now Kayleen for as she said for many years worked in the corporate sector in Wastewater surged as an engineer designing Wastewater treated sewage treatment plants. So she worked at Parliament House Canberra. Boom. Boom again, seriously, she talked about how she did achieve some change in the sector. It wasn't always easy and look at this is a you know, this could be an emotive debate. Some people say smash the system. I don't I'm a bit of a cynic. I'm not sure any system to be honest is better what than one another and that's probably not perhaps the most populist opinion. I could express on 3 CR because I'm a believer that our systems only is our structure or a team is only as good as the people in charge of it. And if you have the influence which I want to talk about throughout the show today, that's deliberately why I was went out of my way to the opinions of my own thing. So I'm gonna have some controversial things to say to them in one of those moods where I just I'm in a bit of a hang it mode 3 CR management. Don't worry won't little beak. It'll probably still be careful and balanced but it is possible there was criticism of some of our community organizations, which is something I want to talk about from Natalie from Ivy league a highly passionate speech from Baz queer Arabs Australia.

You and a very, you know, well, I'll say well approach thing that got you thinking about a sort of sheet of little stickers came around at the start of the show the panel discussion. We didn't really know why and some people took one and there were 21 on them and at the end of Baz's talk that has talked about what that represents in the time this whole panel discussions going, that's the number of Palestinian children have been killed now. That's I think I'm not going to get into the Palestinian debate per se but I think that's a very clever way to communicate and get it, you know positively to people's hearts and feelings on the issue and that certainly gives us a good tactic as to what I wanted to some of the things I want to talk about today. So yeah, really really well done Alison Thorne.

And who was the last speaker? I mean, you know look Alison Thorne is just again, look, I've known Alison for nearly 25 years along with Debbie Brendan. Now, they've been on the show many times and on this station many times their sense of community is the ability to build is just incredible and I really think that you can't really sort of go past what I was in the sea.

Her sense of sort of commentary and her ability to find positives and constructive thought in particular in these difficult times is really really amazing. And you know, I'm just looking here at a post by the fabulous trance sisters United some of whom are present on 3 CR including queering the air at 3 p.m. This afternoon after Freedom of species and rRotations and on freedom of species today while I think about it will mention it again later talking about whistleblowers in the animal agriculture Industries in Australia's treatment of them always diverse stuff on freedom of species, but a great post that was put up this morning on transistors United page Bassam speak to resonating deeply stirring emotions and connecting with attendees and

Contribution of trans women of colour to the stone Uprising and and also Graham, will it who I'm hoping to get on the show next week to talk about the upcoming Hemi sexual histories conference. Why do I always say homosexual that way? It's just a habit was also gave some great overview of Stonewall and some of the sort of myths. I must admit I've fallen for the myth in the past that the some of the drag queens at Stonewall bar on the night of the First night of the riots were emotional because of the funeral of Judy Garland. Graham Willett says there's no evidence of that; I'm not sure how you'd probably find out anyway, and it's sort of been hard to track who was really there. It's apparently there were more people there than their active saying they were there than there actually were so it was a huge sort of, you know piece of work a great panel discussion. And you know, it's I think it's a huge range of perspectives and

Well Chad and I think that it's just so important that you know, we do this and there's a quote which I must have been I must have missed I did have to duck out of the room for a second activism should be without ego disagree respectfully Community spaces are sacred spaces protect them lights definitely going to lead in to some things. I want to talk about throughout the show today, so

Lovely to meet a lovely person from Perth who was over for the event, you know, and it was just a really nice event and sort of good range of perspectives and it was one of those very different perspectives. You might not have agreed with all of them. But as that quote just said disagree respectfully, even if you disagreed with something, you know, the comments were for heartfelt and that's sort of what we need in our because I want to talk about what I see. Unfortunately ,some things we need to I'll say swing the pendulum back to the balance. So I in my what do I play today on the show found this CD from way way back In 1989 from Tanya Bowra. 've forgotten about it in my collection. Yes. I'm still on CDs. Let's be music medium diverse and respect or and tolerate things he's back from this album called Heaven and Earth. Of course, once ticks over onto the first of July. Well, we can't get it in for another 12 months. But also, yes watch out for all those accountants in the streets tonight for end of financial year with their ties are the Red Power ties around their neck , and the jackets looking, you know, they're dark jackets looking a bit Askew and that's only the women are non-binary ones. Boom. Boom. Yeah, seriously, we wouldn't care about that at all in any way. Yes, please support 3 CR, please support out of the pan and help us make sure we can run the station efficiently and effectively we don't take government grants. We don't take sort of things like that and that's a nice lead-in back Sally segue here to what something that Alison Thorne said yesterday radical women Freedom Socialist Party. You know, she said well people say to her. Why don't you um, you apply for Grants and make bigger because we don't want to compromise our independence and now that's a fair, you know, that's a reasonable opinion which Freedom Socialist Party radical women follow in 3 CR follow, but I'm going to leave it in on one of

Some concerns I have about our community that yes, we deserve government LGBTIQ+ communities deserve Government funding. We all know of the research talks at the disadvantage and we should have got what we had and a lot more and it still needs a lot more a long time ago. Here's the wall panel dry humour warped sense of humour intended the sixty-four Thousand Dollar Question. Does it compromise your independence if you get if you get it, well, it doesn't have to but it needs people of strength to assertively stand up for what they believe problem. Do we push people away what who are assertive out of communities? Do we disagree respectfully or not? I'm not so sure and activism without ego, I've noticed in the last I'm going to say about 7 to 8 years give or take six to eight. Let's not get to hear splitty that our we've lost descent if we had a sense of community or communities in our advocacy and activism. We've become to use a word that I invented managerialized, which combines corporatized politicized and bureaucratized and the humanity is less than it was and I think that's a problem.

But also the easy go in there and people in there for the wrong reasons. I remember a meeting in the late teens which is and two other people from a community organization that I was involved in met with a senior bureaucrat in the Victorian government who said and I quote I'm very new to this LGBTI (sic) area it but it'll be a good career move for me. I'll really is that all we are a remove and apparently when my concern about that came back. I was told that I shouldn't be so judgmental. Give me a break, but I'm also concerned about careerists who are using our community and it organizations in it too much for themselves now. Yes, you've got to be I'll be careful here. Yes, we want to do it. But where's the heart? Where's the sense of compassion? And I feel in our rush to be managed you realized that we need to get all these.

It's an have access to power. I feel that we are a cutting off from Community. We're not building enough community at the Grassroots and there's not enough connection. How do we get feedback from the Grassroots and a range of people and activism without ego and disagreeing respectfully listening respectfully; how do we do that? Because I'm just I feel like it's very different to you know, 30 years ago now yes things change and yes, there's more people out and we've got this in turn these wacky things this technology internet and social media and stuff those things are important, but have we become too I'm going to have to say this corporatized have we lost the Grassroots? One of the things that I think Melbourne / Nam does well for queer people and probably another smaller niche communities is we do seem to build reasonably well from the grassroot's up, but and I'm going to say this careful. I don't want to get into intercity rivalries. Sydney is a bit more top-down corporate, but I think we've swung too far the Sydney way and when you consider that Anthony Albanese is from Sydney and is only taking that approach do we have a case of unconscious bias, or is it even wilful deliberate bias? Because I'm not really feeling represented by the federal labor government on a few fronts.

First of all, whenever they mention they do say LGBTIQ+ plus but then they say it doesn't matter who you love as a trans person that's nothing to do with who I love I will hope that I'm being an ally for people with variation of sex characteristics that is not about who you love. It is about your body differing from societal medical expectations about male or female and varies from the X what we called that expected.

Will Fame oh, so are we being represented? And why does this keep going on and I'm also going to throw a controversial point in in light of the fact that the reforms needed to the sex Discrimination Act to stop discrimination in religious schools again, students and teachers say have seemed to be put off again now that we're probably what within a year give or take of when a federal election is going to be called.

And there's two parts to that is there that our federal labor government still hasn't got it nerve back from 2019 with its unexpected loss or are some people setting things up. So that within weight they get into certain positions. Is it possible that they're holding off on these reforms and then they'll take the credit for them. Now that may sound cynical conspiracy theorist controversial whatever but I know some of the personalities

Our communities and I can't help wondering if that's going on in the meantime that's means more people suffer as someone just put on a post that means there's more mental health problems for queer students and teachers at schools that enforce these exemptions. It should be pointed out that not all religious schools do one school writing to one of the numerous inquiries since 2017. When we even know there was a, you know, sort of what was it 61.6% voted. Yes in

Our of marriage equality. We still have to go through it. They have to go through this rigmarole to apease some loud people who having a hissy fit that not everyone wants to grovel to their opinions and I'm not saying that it's about religion overall. It's some elements of religion who couldn't accept that result and who can't accept who say that they're under attack because people just say sorry we disagree no well. Anyway, you know one of those schools I said write a submission into this issue and it was about three lines one paragraph We have never used the religious exemptions do not see that we would need to and so I won't or something like pretty close to that. So now why is the government so hesitant? Why does some elements of religion think that they can enforce their religion on everyone else and let's get away from anything that with freedom of religion. What does freedom of religion actually mean I

I understood it meant that you could worship safely in your own place of worship including your own home without fear of will say retaliation or intimidation as I just said it's not intimidation to say look. I know thanks just don't want your belief system. It's not about the right of religion to do whatever it wants and then let's go and go somewhere else. You know, when we hear of numerically smaller religions being vilified religion isn't a simple in terms of anti-discrimination.

Law as things such as say sexual orientation where we know I'm the power structure is that heterosexuals have the power and privilege or other things being equal compared to gay lesbian bi plus Ace and any + + + + I've never you know, despite what people that's also debunk a myth that it is not discrimination against heterosexuals to for example say that we need a gay or lesbian or bi person in a certain job. There is no sort of state anti-discrimination law allows for that sort of, you know positive discrimination. If you are saying in Igbtiq a plus organization, so, you know, the thing is religion. There are as I say the bigger numeric I'm going to say apparently numerically dominant faiths and then you've got your smaller ones.

Really need the protection and that can be Islam. It can be seeks it can be we can and not you know, not that it's my thing that it could be satanic worship, you know, if that's your worship and you're just doing it and you're not interfering with their own else or pressuring anyone else to be part of your religion. You've got a right to do that. So how do we find that balance and it just seems that the government's given up. Well the reality is that

That the government if someone said to me you have to put a five dollar bet on the result of the next federal election based on what you know today my B would be a minority labor government eating crossbench support the Liberal Party May pick up one or two back up one or two of the teal seats, but I don't think it'll be enough and I don't think label would lose enough. Now. The last thing I'll call myself is an electoral analyst but that would be the reasonable five-dollar bill. Gambling gamble responsibly preferably not at all. Seriously. The thing is the government's going to have the Alp if neck case would have to get used to negotiating with the crossbenchers. So why not do it now? Is it that some people are waiting to delay things and corporate cause more needless suffering so they can take glory interesting thoughts. Welcome your thoughts on these issues and other things that I want to talk about after we have another track and and yeah out of the pan 855 at gmail SMS six one four five six seven five 1215 Twitter Mastodon Blue Sky Instagram at sell gold said so and that's the bottom line and 3 CR 855 am out of the pan 3 CR 85/50 am Melbourne and Sally Gardner on Facebook.

3 CR 855 am 3 CR Digital 3. CR dot org dot Tau 3 CR on demand out of the pan with Sally first broadcasting noon through one every Sunday afternoon. Thanks for your company. We just heard from Colin Hay who have said is playing tonight at Hema Hall. I think there's still some tickets going but so get on to the just hit. I'm Colin hamer Hall and you would be able to get one waiting for my real life to begin, you know.

When it's going to begin again, yes things that we have to contemplate that also, you know things that we have to contemplate, you know Community as I said, have we pull pushed the swung the pendulum too far and that Ali Felts from IV made some good comments about the sort of yes yesterday at the from Stonewall Rebellion to Assimilation panel discussion saying that you know, I look now is it all very well to go and do diversity education when we've got trans people or homeless. Well, look, I know I see where that's coming from. You might see as trans homelessness is you know, obviously bigger problem. We is housing a human right all that sort of thing. But now look declaring my bias is someone who turned in like the last 10 years. I saw a lot of whatever income.

Head through diversity education, you know, I'm going to question the word or we need bits of both and the government should be state government in an Ideal World and federal government would be funding homelessness for disadvantaged people of all sorts and know, you know, that's a fair call. But you know the question then comes about, you know, sort of you know, how do we know and this is about having

Room for everybody and it does big questions about community and who's being left behind and who's not being, you know being brought along because I think part of the problem with the assimilationists that approach that's been taken which was sort of in the title of the stone wall panel discussion yesterday. Is it for those who wear it is eat who for whom it is easier to assimilate they've come further and now let's look at that on the air.

LGBTI that is obviously gnl this as I always put it this We're just like you heterosexuals, except well homosexual don't tell anyone. Yeah, which is great. But how do you then assimilate you explain that? Simply if you're trans, I'll look my gender identity doesn't quite fit expectations given my body which is accurate. It's what people expect it might give them my body at Birth in in in an engineer and on we go and Intersex people look my body doesn't fit, you know sort of societal expectations of sex characteristics and by will look someday, you know some days I'm going to be with someone's going on. So we've been thrown under the bus and then we add in other intersectionalities, you know age and neurodivergent switch. I still think when only on the tip of the iceberg on in queer communities, but possibly the whole of society and not you know, whilst total acknowledging the issues.

I spy people on the autism spectrum and ADHD, which are the two often most talked about forms of neurodivergent saw all sorts of it and how old a queer people we've had to battle to find any of gender identity expression sexual romantic orientation sex, you know finding out about their sex variation of sex characteristics get through all that and then it's long. I'll do we need I'm being a little exaggerated here or do we need any more labels and won't look at it.

And then acknowledging my privilege as someone who is white neither Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander, you know, the intersection of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and queer including sister girls and brother boys and people of color sort of I just I'm worried that this corporate this managerialism that I talked about earlier in this assimilation. ISM has left too many people behind and a lot of people are feeling it but the sixty-four thousand dollar question is what are we going to Do and there's schools of thought on this some people say that some of our organizations are well relatively polite work Cactus and we need to start again. Some are saying do we you know sort of well do a my words a benign Insurgency approach and try to take them over which to some extent pride in protest has had some success with in the monolith. That is a corporate monolith.

That is Mardi Gras. So all sorts of factors to consider in terms of building community. And our we do how do we do it because as I said earlier, I think we're leaving behind the too much of the Grassroots and look I'll just say don't be fooled by appearances. I'm going to say this. Please don't ever call me middle-class. I don't feel it and by any objective measure I'm not and I'm trying to hold.

Bias for all of us because I think that we're not doing well enough and I've always felt that way so, you know that we can always keep doing better. Sorry is what I'm wanting to say here. So welcome your thoughts and something we need to keep about which we need to keep talking. So yeah, let's have your thoughts on these issues while we here.

Some more ass trial in music this time from Shane Howard from his second solo album River and which one will we go for and Hello, this is Leroy McQueen. And you're listening to out of the pan on 3 CR.

Yee and hars and has to non-binary performer Leroy McQueen nothing like a music of all the non-binary kinds and that's the sort of Music we've had today Rock lighter acoustic sort of acoustic rock and will have an instrumental to close the show at 54 minutes and 17 seconds. Here's the wrestling mention. Yes self-indulgent, but you can if you go to the social media YouTube in particular and social media for Alpha pro wrestling listen to my debut ever commentary. I'm doing it live and on the world's worst perfectionist creative sort of person and even I'm pretty happy with it for a first shot and goodness me. I'll be back again at Pipeworks in Thomastown on July 13th. See you there for Alpha energy six. Okay. There's the wrestling out of the way prior to the messages. We heard from Shane Howard from River and if the well runs dry

Once again freedom of species coming up very very soon around 5 minutes time if you're listening at live and if you're listening on podcast or repeat or on-demand check out freedom of species program great animal advocacy. And once again freedom of species on the show that airs on the 30th of June 2020 for will be talking about whistle blows in the animal agriculture Industries in Australia is treatment of said whistleblowers. So yep tune into that. Keep it locked on 3 CR as often as possible, but if you do want to well multitask somehow and have the alpha wrestling stuff on in the background good for you.

What else is going on in terms of stuff? Yep. I think there's a poly Vic social today. I would oh Polly social organized by The Fabulous Cassie and I can't remember where it was. But see if you can scratch it out on social media for your polyamorous that is into multiple ethical relationships and there's some queer TV, of course on 31 / 44 on Friday evening, and that just about gets us through and out of here. So freedom of species at one rotations at to query there at three Salam radio show at for is your afternoons listening on 3 CR sound on for solidarity. And yeah, please support out of the pan to get us over the line on our radiothon target of $1550, I've got to get out of here and make way for freedom of species. So take it out today. As I said with an instrumental which pays tribute to Mike Oldfield with more of the music of all the non-binary kinds and it's the Magnificent Seven and Tubular Cowbells. Thanks for tuning in to out of the pan. I'm Sally Goldner catchya next week.
